This movement should be quick and stiff to signify that it's a cut off rather than a beat.

If there is a part of the song where one section of the band needs to stop playing immediately, you can cut off the section. Look at the section you want to cut off and move your baton from one side of the conducting space to the other exactly on the beat they are supposed to stop. If you're using your hands, start with them together at the focal point and bring them apart to each side of the conducting space. This will help them stop playing together and will keep the song sounding crisp.
